THE LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS ASSOCIATION

LERA, a nonprofit membership association founded in 1947, is the major professional group for anyone seriously interested in industrial relations and human resources. Its members share common interests and each contributes special skills and knowledge for the benefit of others through meetings, workshops, and publications.

The Alabama Chapter of LERA is celebrating its 30th year of bringing labor and management together. Members include individuals from unions, management, academia, and government officials. Alabama LERA provides a number of meetings that are held in locations throughout the State, as well as an annual conference headlined by experts in the field.
